

PASTORS DON'T ASK FOR SUCH CHANGE

UNIVERSITY MINISTERS VOTE DOWN A PROPOSITION.

Action To be Reconsidered—Very Close Vote in the Convention at Chicago—Religious Bodies of Various Denominations in Session Throughout the Country

Chicago, Oct. 21.—Delegates to the general convention of the Universalist church Wednesday defeated a plan to change the requirements of admission to the church. Later a motion to reconsider was carried, and the question will come up again. It was the principal subject before the session in the morning. The spirited discussion culminated when the motion was made to amend the constitution so as to grant fellowship without making a subscription to the entire creed of the church necessary.

Dr. Nash of Lombard university will propose a measure which provides for an entire change in the basis of representation in the convention by making every ordained minister and one lay representative from every parish in the country eligible to fellowship in the convention as a delegate. At present the total possible representation is 200, and the proposed change would provide the convention with 1,779 eligibles.

The proposition considered by the convention in regard to the changing of the conditions is known as the "Boston plan," having been prepared by Boston ministers. It was proposed, instead of changing the "Winchester profession," to grant the privilege of fellowship also upon the applicant's assenting to the general principles of the creed. Belief in the fatherhood of God, the spiritual leadership and authority of Jesus Christ, the trustworthiness of the Bible and the final harmony of all souls with God.

Under the rules of the convention a two-thirds vote was necessary to the adoption of the Boston plan. There were 102 delegates present when President Charles L. Hutchinson called for the "yeas" and "nays." Seventy of the delegates voted for the proposed conditions, while the other thirty-two held out against them, and the plan was defeated.

London, Oct. 21.—Lord Salisbury Wednesday night sent to Ambassador Hay the reply of the British government to the proposals of the American bimetallic commission, headed by Senator Wolcott.

His lordship says that the government of Great Britain is not able to reopen the India mints at present. He regrets his inability to accede to the proposals of the American commission, Great Britain having as great an interest as the United States and France in securing a stable par exchange for gold and silver and an enlarged use of silver.

In these circumstances, continues Lord Salisbury, the British government does not see the desirability of an international monetary conference, but will be pleased to consider any other practical suggestions from the United States.

Lord Salisbury incloses with the note a copy of the statement of Sir J. Westland, head of the financial department of India, which was under discussion at the meeting of the cabinet council last Saturday, and which takes strong grounds against the reopening of the India mints.

Ambassador Andrew White came from Berlin last Saturday. He has avoided publicity, but has had several conferences with Senator Wolcott. In the course of an interview with the correspondent of the Associated Press Mr. White said that Germany's action as to bimetallicism will depend upon Great Britain. Discussing the possibility of a tariff war Mr. White said: "I do not believe that Germany will inaugurate a tariff war with the United States. The German press and many German statesmen have been very bitter against the Dingley law, but I think they are now beginning to realize that an increased prosperity will enable the United States to buy as much under the lower tariff."

Episcopal Missionary Council.

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 21.—The usual services of prayer and litany preceded the business of the Episcopal Missionary Council Wednesday. The Rev. W. V. Tunnell (colored) read a paper on missionary work among colored people. The speaker said it was time the church adopted a new method of conducting this branch of its missionary work. He concluded by saying more scope should be given to the race, and they should be treated more as men, and no longer as slaves. There are no colored bishops in the Episcopal church in America, and it is evident from the position taken that the colored church commissioners concluded that the time has come when they should be recognized.

Afraid of American Competition.

London, Oct. 21.—The Pall Mall Gazette during the course of a long article on American competition in the iron and steel industries, says: "Today we find the United States not only challenging our supremacy in neutral markets, but even obtaining a foothold in England. The causes which are giving the United States such a favorable position are permanent, and everything points to the United States remaining the cheapest steel producing country in the world."

Too Much Bureaucracy in It.

Washington, Oct. 21.—Thomas E. Moore, commercial agent of the United States at Weimar, Germany, sends to the state department a report on the colonial policy of Germany, which consists of a translation of an article in the Berlin Boersen Courier, severely criticizing the German colonial policy and politics. ### Military Rule in Alaska.

Washington, Oct. 21.—The secretary of war has issued an order creating a military reservation in that part of Alaska lying within a radius of fifty miles of St. Michael. ## ARREST STATE TREASURER.

George A. Steel of Michigan Admitted to Bail in $2,500 Bonds.

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 21.—Judge Swan of the United States court, late Wednesday afternoon, upon affidavits submitted by George Reed, receiver of the First National bank of Ithaca; Olin H. Heath, vice-president of the bank, and Charles E. Webster and James D. Drawford, directors, issued a capias for the arrest of State Treasurer George A. Steel. The capias was delivered without delay to United States Marshal Winney, and before it was served Judge Swan fixed the state treasurer's bail at $2,500. The proceeding is a result of the failure of the treasurer's father, Robert M. Steel of St. Johns, last year, for more than $1,000,000. Robert M. Steel was president of the Ithaca national bank. The day after he failed the bank closed its doors. The state treasurer was a director of the bank.

The affidavits recite that on Oct. 5, 1895, the bank received in its course of business a promissory note made by D. S. French of St. Johns for $5,203.33. In June, 1896, the state treasurer, who was then acting as examining and discount committee for the Ithaca bank, induced the directors to exchange this note, which was classed as good paper, for a note of the same amount made by the St. Johns Manufacturing company in favor of the Ithaca Sawmill company, and indorsed by the latter company, without recourse. The St. Johns Manufacturing company was one of the Robert M. Steel enterprises. The note is declared to be of little value, and it is charged that the state treasurer must have known the condition of the manufacturing company when he induced the bank to exchange notes.

WEYLER IS MUTINOUS.

He Abruptly Refuses to Turn Over His Command in Cuba.

Havana, Oct. 21.—In spite of all his protests to the contrary, General Weyler, when it comes to the actual test of resigning his command, exhibits decided reluctance. He has refused to give over authority as captain general to his duly appointed successor, Jimenez Castellan, although peremptorily ordered to do so by Spain's minister of war.

The situation is critical. Senor Sagasta cannot, it is believed, permit his ministry to be openly defied by General Weyler, and yet he may have to resort to extreme measures to remove the captain general.

Gov. Mount Is Ready to Act.

Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 21.—Developments of an important character are expected in the investigation into the Versailles lynching this week, and it is said that the governor is so well informed regarding the participants in that tragedy, in which five men were killed by a mob, that he has no hesitancy in proceeding against them. Arrests are expected in a few days. Whether the governor will demand that a new grand jury be impaneled, and place the evidence before it, or proceed by arrest and preliminary trial before a peace justice, has not been decided.

Illinois Pythians Elect Officers.

Peoria, Ill., Oct. 21.—The grand lodge of the Knights of Pythias elected Dr. A. G. Servoss, Havana, grand chancellor. This is an important matter, as it affects 600,000 knights and $30,000,000 insurance.

The Rathbone Sisters concluded their convention, the principal business being the election of officers. Helen S. Dunn, Centralia, was elected grand chief.

JURY CAN'T SEE ALIKE

Discharged After Sixty Six Hours.

LUETGERT CASE COMES TO AN END.

Last Ballot Stood 9 To 3 For Conviction.

JUDGE TUTHILL QUESTIONED EACH JUROR.

They Declared That They Saw No Chance of Reaching An Agreement—There Is Said To Be Small Probability of Another Trial of the Case—Jurors Almost Exhausted by Their Long Confinement.

The jury was out sixty-six hours, the long distance record in Chicago. The Cronin jury, in 1889, according to the best recollection of men engaged in the case, was not out more than sixty hours.

Chicago, Oct. 21.—[Special]—Judge Tuthill discharged the Luetgert jury at 11 o'clock.

There were attendants about the court room all night and at 9 o'clock this morning the crowd began to gather.

It was not until a ter 10:30 that Judge Tuthill was ready for work. The jury was brought in and polled by the court. Each man was asked in turn whether he believed that an agreement would be possible and each said that he thought it would not. After the poll had been taken the jury was discharged.

The general opinion is that another trial is unlikely. The last ballot that stood 9 to 3 for conviction. The jury were out sixty-six hours and were almost exhausted by their labors.

Another day of such strain would have resulted in the collapse of some of the twelve. As they filed into court their garments hung loose and unbuttoned. Most of them were uncombed. None wore a collar. Their eyes were sunken, their lips bloodless, their faces haggard and drawn. The jury sought Judge Tuthill for advice at 11 o'clock yesterday morning. Individual members told him then that forty-two hours of deliberation had brought them no closer to agreement. Judge Tuthill and State's Attorney Deneen waited last night until nearly 9 o'clock. They announced, just before going home, that court would not be opened again to receive a verdict until 9:30 this morning.

DENOUNCE DINGLEY BILL

German Manufacturer Indulges in Harsh Criticism of the Measure.

Berlin, Oct. 21.—At a meeting of the Central Association of German Industrials to elect delegates to Prince Hohenlohe's committee for drafting new commercial treaties Herr Buck, who was the chief speaker, denounced the Dingley tariff as "the most complicated, contradictory, and uncertain tariff ever conceived." He declared that it was "due to the capitalistic speculations, which are proving fatal to the industrial existence of the United States."

At the same time Herr Buck said he felt bound to protest against the danger of a customs war. The sugar industry would suffer thereby, and Germany would not be in a position to support herself if the United States should retaliate with repressive duties on corn, cotton, or petroleum. On the other hand, he said he did not anticipate a long life for "the era of capitalistic domination in America."

Not Fighting With Tribesmen.

Simla, Oct. 21.—Official advices from Fort Lockhardt say that after the fighting on Monday last between the British troops under Gen. Sir Yeatman-Biggs and the insurgent tribesmen from Chagru, on the Samana range, the British force returned to Ahinwari, and the tribesmen, greatly re-enforced, reoccupied in force the heights west of Chagru. The position was a very strong one, on the summit of a precipitous hill, reached only by a single path along which the attacking force, consisting of the Gurkha regulars and the Dorsetshire regiment, was obliged to climb in Indian file, three batteries meanwhile shelling the Sangars. The losses of the British were severe.

Ask American Help.

London, Oct. 21.—The Amalgamated Society of Engineers has prepared a manifesto, to be sent to the American newspapers and labor organizations, appealing for money in order to enable the society to keep the striking engineers from giving in to their employers.

PRESS WOODRUFF'S TALE OF EARLY DAYS

SCENES AROUND JANESVILLE
RECALL ARKANSAW.

He "Started Poor But Honest And Is Tolerably Poor, Yet—Editors Have Had A Share In His Undoing—Experiences In East And West.

Twenty two years ago last pay day, I left the old farm in "Arkansaw," for Oregon. At that time, I was poor and honest, and I am poor yet.

I went to the west on the advice of Horace Greeley. I grew up with the country to the height of six feet. Each summer I gathered information for the fall trace; and in a burst of confidence I gathered everything else that I could get my hands on. I was educated on the run, but I haven't enough to create any excitement.

When I reached the age of seventeen I was seized with a morbid yearning to be a traveling man. In time a position was given me by a firm in San Francisco. I was flip, fluent, flossy, fresh and frisky. When I started out I understood that I was to travel so I never bothered myself about stopping off at many places to sell goods. I just travelled. I kept on traveling for nine years, during which time I broke up six houses. I went on the road without a dollar, and came out $900 in debt. Friends of mine said I did well. The dream of all these years was to become a newspaper man, as I could write a good hand with the full arm movement, having had a great deal of practice on the sides of barns and board fences.

My first story was on, how to plough without sweating. This I sent to a Portland paper. The editor wrote me (after the story had been on the "time file" for three months) that he would publish it for me for $12, although he thought it was too good to be published in a newspaper, that I should bring it out in book form. I sent the $12, and by an oversight on the part of the business manager the story was run twice. The result was, they lost 1800 subscribers. I then secured employment on a paper in Seattle. The first day I was assigned to write up a pink tea party. The compositor made a mistake and it read: "A pleasant pink tea party given by Mrs. Jasper."

The next day the editor—in an unguarded moment—separated me from my salary.

Then I made my way to Spokane and was soon made one of the force on the Morning Chronicle. The man at the big desk, whose hair had not been combed since the demonization of silver gave me an assignment to write up the county fair. There, I noticed a beautiful painting. It was a work of art, painted by Mrs. Silvertown. I wrote of this painting as a remarkable piece of work, painted with a deft hand. Again the compositor came out with a typographical error. It read: "A work of art, painted by Mrs. Silvertown's left hand." Once more I was instructed to go to the bookkeeper, as he wanted a conference with me. My pay was discontinued.

Later on I wrote a book. I bribed the reader of a publishing company, and the manuscript was sold. That company went to the wall six weeks after the book was published. Seeing that the newspaper business was overdone, I went to Kentucky and lectured on the curse of mixed drinks, but it did not pay. I remembered that out west I had been accused of being funny, so I tried lecturing on wit and humor. My first appearance in this line was at Louisville. I had a large house—but not many came out to hear me. While I was trying to get funny, I noticed a woman in one of the front seats shedding tears. I watched her with interest. She cried all evening and I felt that my effort at mirth making was a flat failure. When the show was over, I waited for the audience to get out, it was slow however, as many stopped at the box office and wanted their money back. When I was sure that all had left, I asked the janitor why that woman cried. He said: "Well I'll tell you; her tear ducts are stopped up and she would have cried anyway, no matter what subject you might have lectured on."

Then I heaved a sigh of relief, as I had come to the conclusion that she had mistaken my wit and humor for pathos.

Since I have been in Janesville, a number of "inexorable reminiscences" have been recalled of that old "Arkansaw" farm where my boyhood days were spent. The song of the whippoorwill, way off down in the bottom, the distant noise of that ever busy wood pecker, beating his face against an old dead tree and the bark of the gray squirrel in the hickory nut tree at early morning has again made me feel young. The other day I got a shot gun and went into the woods for an old fashioned squirrel hunt and then and there did wilfully and maliciously kill eight fox squirrels. Mr. William Cox who lives saved miles north of this place, had invited me to hunt in his woods as he has eighty acres of squirrel land. The only difference between the squirrels of "Arkansaw" and this state is they are not disciplined here. In several cases I gave the order to halt but they kept on going. I think if I took another hunt in that section, I would not need a gun. The moment a squirrel got a sight of me it would drop dead.

Mr. Cox is a big hearted man and he seems to have taken quite a liking to me as he invited me to come out and visit with him and help husk his crop of corn. PRESS WOODRUFF.

Then I made my way to Spokane and was soon made one of the force on the Morning Chronicle. The man at the big desk, whose hair had not been combed since the demonization of silver gave me an assignment to write up the county fair. There, I noticed a beautiful painting. It was a work of art, painted by Mrs. Silvertown. I wrote of this painting as a remarkable piece of work, painted with a deft hand. Again the compositor came out with a typographical error. It read: "A work of art, painted by Mrs. Silvertown's left hand." Once more I was instructed to go to the bookkeeper, as he wanted a conference with me. My pay was discontinued.

Later on I wrote a book. I bribed the reader of a publishing company, and the manuscript was sold. That company went to the wall six weeks after the book was published. Seeing that the newspaper business was overdone, I went to Kentucky and lectured on the curse of mixed drinks, but it did not pay. I remembered that out west I had been accused of being funny, so I tried lecturing on wit and humor. My first appearance in this line was at Louisville. I had a large house—but not many came out to hear me. While I was trying to get funny, I noticed a woman in one of the front seats shedding tears. I watched her with interest. She cried all evening and I felt that my effort at mirth making was a flat failure. When the show was over, I waited for the audience to get out, it was slow however, as many stopped at the box office and wanted their money back. When I was sure that all had left, I asked the janitor why that woman cried. He said: "Well I'll tell you; her tear ducts are stopped up and she would have cried anyway, no matter what subject you might have lectured on."

Then I heaved a sigh of relief, as I had come to the conclusion that she had mistaken my wit and humor for pathos.

Since I have been in Janesville, a number of "inexorable reminiscences" have been recalled of that old "Arkansaw" farm where my boyhood days were spent. The song of the whippoorwill, way off down in the bottom, the distant noise of that ever busy wood pecker, beating his face against an old dead tree and the bark of the gray squirrel in the hickory nut tree at early morning has again made me feel young. The other day I got a shot gun and went into the woods for an old fashioned squirrel hunt and then and there did wilfully and maliciously kill eight fox squirrels. Mr. William Cox who lives saved miles north of this place, had invited me to hunt in his woods as he has eighty acres of squirrel land. The only difference between the squirrels of "Arkansaw" and this state is they are not disciplined here. In several cases I gave the order to halt but they kept on going. I think if I took another hunt in that section, I would not need a gun. The moment a squirrel got a sight of me it would drop dead.

Mr. Cox is a big hearted man and he seems to have taken quite a liking to me as he invited me to come out and visit with him and help husk his crop of corn. PRESS WOODRUFF.

When I reached the age of seventeen I was seized with a morbid yearning to be a traveling man. In time a position was given me by a firm in San Francisco. I was flip, fluent, flossy, fresh and frisky. When I started out I understood that I was to travel so I never bothered myself about stopping off at many places to sell goods. I just travelled. I kept on traveling for nine years, during which time I broke up six houses. I went on the road without a dollar, and came out $900 in debt. Friends of mine said I did well. The dream of all these years was to become a newspaper man, as I could write a good hand with the full arm movement, having had a great deal of practice on the sides of barns and board fences.

My first story was on, how to plough without sweating. This I sent to a Portland paper. The editor wrote me (after the story had been on the "time file" for three months) that he would publish it for me for $12, although he thought it was too good to be published in a newspaper, that I should bring it out in book form. I sent the $12, and by an oversight on the part of the business manager the story was run twice. The result was, they lost 1800 subscribers. I then secured employment on a paper in Seattle. The first day I was assigned to write up a pink tea party. The compositor made a mistake and it read: "A pleasant pink tea party given by Mrs. Jasper."

The next day the editor—in an unguarded moment—separated me from my salary.

BAD BATHING VIEWS UNDER W. C. T. U. BAN

NEW LINE OF WORK FOR WOMEN.

Suggestive Underwear And Soap Ads Are To Be Fought Earnestly By The Temperance Forces In The First Congressional District—New Superintendents Named.

Suggestive pictures in advertisements are to be an especial object of warfare on the part of the W. C. T. U. of Rock county the coming year.

Before the First district convention adjourned a plan of work for the year was laid out and the objectionable advertising crusade was determined upon. The convention had especial reference to the bathtub and underwear advertisements which appear in the high class magazines. Each local union will be requested to labor with advertisers in the home district and to exert pressure on dealers using advertised goods.

Additional emphasis will also be put this year on evangelistic and Sunday school work. More stress is to be laid hereafter on making plain to young people the evils of intemperance.

Before closing the convention adopted resolutions thanking Janesville ladies for their kindness.

The closing meeting of the convention was of great interest. There were remarks by Rev. H. W. Thompson, Rev. W. A. Hall, and Miss Margaret Wintringer and music by Mrs. J. F. Sweeney, Mrs. Christine Hawley, Mrs. W. S. Jeffris and Mrs. C. L. Clark.

Superintendents for the different departments of work were elected, the departments and their superintendents being as follows:

Evangelistic—Mrs. E. M. Thomas, Milton.

Scientific Temperance Instruction—Mrs. Flora Rice, Harmony.

Literature—Miss Helen Perkins, Bristol.

Mothers' Meetings—Mrs. E. E. Yates, Janesville.

Work Among Lumbermen—Mrs. H. E. Osborn, North Johnstown.

Eau Claire Home Director—Mrs. P. E. Miller, Milton.

Narcotic—Dr. Elsie Schmitz, Milton.

Parlor Meetings—Mrs. Lizzie Crumb, Milton.

Flower Mission—Mrs. Jennie Story, Harmony.

Press Work—Miss Maggie Reynolds, Pleasant Prairie.

Memorial—Mrs. E. A. West, Elkhorn.

Y. M. C. A. Secretary—Miss Cera DeForest, Beloit.

Work Among Foreign Speaking People—Miss Sarah Leet, Racine.

Loyal Temperance Legion—Mrs. Rachel Fourtelotte, Pleasant Prairie.

Parliamentary Law—Mrs. Vie E. Campbell, Evansville.

Sabbath Observance—Mrs. Van Akin, Janesville.

Franchise—Mrs. L. S. Kearney, Janesville.

The last three departments were added to the others by motion, yesterday.

JARBEAU IS HERE NEXT

The Paris Doll Will Be Presented Tomorrow Night.

Jarbeau will be here tomorrow night after all and will give DeKoven and Smith's latest operatic travesty "The Paris Doll." The mere fact of any new work claiming DeKoven and Smith as its progenitors is sufficient to secure that work careful and courteous hearing in the hands of the American public. In the "Paris Doll" the American author and composer seem to have gotten away from their alternative specialties of riotous burlesque and staid opera comique and to have tried the charming middle ground which the French vaudeville creators have been working with such conspicuous success for several seasons past. The company appeared at Rockford Tuesday evening and The Star in a column review of the play says Jarbeau was at her best. The entire company was given unstinted praise.

RESIDENTS FIGHT PARK JAIL

They Don't Favor the Erection of Bastile, Adjoining Court House.

The idea of a jail in the court house park is not favored in the Third ward. Property owners will fight such a plan to the end. Those who advocate the building of a jail adjoining the court houses y that it could be heated from the court house boiler cheaper and that the present jail is too far away. Supervisors Bailey & Rathern strongly favored the present site, however, and their report to the county board next month will be to that effect.

The Janesville Light Infantry ranks twenty fourth on the inspecting officer's table of standings this year. Its rating of 176.4 out of a possible 200 is a considerable improvement over other years.

The Monroe City Guard this year captured first honors for proficiency among infantry companies of the W. N. G., being marked 189.2.

FUNERAL OF DR. ROYCE

Remains Lie In State From 2 To 5 This Afternoon.

Beloit, Wis., Oct. 21.—[Special.]—The body of Dr. Fayette Royce lay in state in the Episcopal church from 2 to 5 o'clock this afternoon and was viewed by hundreds of his former parishioners and life long friends. The funeral will be held from the church tomorrow at 11 o'clock. Bishop Nicholson of Milwaukee will officiate at the last sad rites of his beloved colleague, and he will be assisted by Rev. G. W. Dunbar of Janesville, a former class mate of Dr. Royce's. The various societies of which he was a member will attend in a body.

FOOT BALL PLAYERS LAID UP.

Hard Game Had Its Effect on Beloit College Players

Fred Jeffris of this city as well as Childs and Meyer who are members of the Beloit college foot ball team are at present nursing badly bruised bodies. So serious are their injuries that Manager Childs has cancelled the foot ball game that they were to have played with the Iowa state university at Iowa City next Saturday.

Beloit's recent hard fought game in Chicago caused this sudden change in the program.

PAY MORE FOR SOFT COAL

Many Extra Nickels Are Required by Street Railway Company.

The recent coal strike is having its effect on the Janesville Electric railway. Supt. Cummins is now paying $4 a ton for Hocking Valley coal which a year ago cost the road but $2.40. The company averages eighteen tons a week and it takes several extra nickels to make up the difference. The new boilers now in use do not burn the amount of coal that was required to feed the old ones.

SAXTON IS STILL ALIVE

Friends Say The Bullet Is Not In His Brain.

Isaac Saxton is still alive, according to messages received at the Gazette office today. The bullet fired by Joseph Bundy never touched his brain, doctors believe. J. J. Parker, an intimate friend of the Saxton's was in town yesterday and declared that the bullet plowed its way along the side of Saxton's head and lodged in the back of his neck.

THE OVERFLOW OF LOCAL NEWS.

A BROKEN ARM.

The Story of How Mr. Pete O'Leary Mended a Broken Arm with Kickapoo Indian Oil.

The Indians Used It for Such Purposes.

To Their Knowledge of this Wonderful Healing Oil is Attributed Their Wonderful Power to Endure Pain.

Aches, pains, sprains, bruises, rheumatism, headache, backache, neuralgia, sciatica, and pains of every description, yield as if by magic to that wonderful cure and quick pain killer—Kickapoo Indian Oil.

One single instance of its power may be seen from the following letter:—

WEST SUPERIOR, WIS.
Gentlemen:—While working on a boat on Lake Superior I was accidentally thrown into the water. My arm was broken. My physician claim that the joint was fractured and that if I ever would full use of my arm. I tried a great many different oils and liniments, which did me no good, until at last I got a bottle of your Kickapoo Indian Oil, and I can truly say that it worked like magic. In a very few hours I was able to use my arm, and inside of a week I could shave myself. It eventually effected a complete cure, and I cannot too heartily recommend it.

PETE O'LEARY.
This same Kickapoo Indian Remedy and its wonderful curative power has been known for generations to the Indian, and is undoubtedly the secret of their power to defy pain. They have given this same secret to their white brethren all over the land, and all who have tried it are unanimous in its praise. While it is instantaneous in allaying pain, it should not be depended upon in cases of rheumatism, chronic headache, sore throat, backache, etc., to effect a permanent cure. These disorders result from a diseased condition of the blood, stomach, kidneys and liver, and while Kickapoo Indian Oil will temporarily allay the pain, in order to effect a permanent cure Kickapoo Indian Remedy should be taken internally.

Kickapoo Indian Remedies will be found at all druggists.

OLD AFTON HOUSE BURNED.

Kimball Property Destroyed By Fire—Dwight Daniels' Fearful Death.

Afton, Oct. 21—Fire Monday afternoon destroyed the Kimball house, one of the old time structures of Afton. The fire was first discovered in the roof and it is supposed to have caught either from a passing train or from the chimney. The house was owned by Henry D. Kimball of Madison, and was occupied by Oscar Watts and family, who lost a portion of their household effects in the flames. Mr. Watts has moved into the Inman house, recently vacated by Frank Radloff. Chicago papers contained an account of the accidental burning to death of Dwight, the three year old son of Rev. and Mrs. George M. Daniels, which occurred last week Wednesday, at the family home in La Grange, Ill., where Rev. Mr. Daniels is pastor of the Baptist church. The little fellow was alone in one of the upper rooms and, it is supposed, was playing with matches, when his clothing became ignited. In putting out the flames, Mrs. Abernethy, grandmother of the child, was severely burned. Rev. Mr. Daniels was formerly pastor of the Baptist church here and is quite well known in this vicinity. The sympathy of many friends will go out to the family in this sudden affliction.

The social season is at hand and Afton people are planning for future events. The Y. P. S. C. E. will hold a "carpet-rag" social at the home of President David Throne on Friday evening, Oct. 29, and the members of the social committee are arranging for a good time. On Saturday evening, Nov. 6, the members of the Afton Camp, M. W. A. will give the first of a series of "Woodman socials" at their hall, preparations for which event are in the hands of a special committee consisting of neighbors W. J. Miller, J. B. Humphrey, David Throne, C. H. Griffin and U. G. Waite. Justice John Kilmer spoke the words last Monday that united Noah Secrist of Newark and Mrs. Ellen Waggoner of this place, as husband and wife. The best wishes of Mrs. Secrist's many friends here will go with her to her new home.

Rev. A. W. Burr, principal of Beloit college academy, occupied the pulpit at the Baptist church last Sunday. Martin Lunn is up from Chicago for a short visit with his parents.

Few men in this country are better or more favorably known to the drug and medicine trade than Mr. E. J. Schall, buyer in proprietary medicine department of the Meyer Bros. Drug Co., St. Louis. He says: "My boy came home from school with his hand badly lacerated and bleeding, and suffering great pain. I dressed the wound and applied Chamberlain's Pain Balm, freely; all pain ceased, and in a remarkably short time, it healed without leaving a scar. For wounds, sprains, swellings and rheumatism, I know of no medicine or prescription equal to it. I consider it a household necessity." Sold by C. D. Stevens, Pharmacist, corner Main and Milwaukee streets.

TRAVEL IN COVERED WAGON

Ohio Family Arrived Here Yesterday on Their Way to Dakota

In an old lumber wagon covered with thin sheeting and drawn by a pair of half starved looking steeds, Frank Willison and wife and nine year old son arrived in town yesterday afternoon. On October 11, they left their home at Martinsville, Ohio, and are on their way to Huron, S. D., near which city they expect to locate on a farm. They sleep in the wagon nights, camping out at night whenever the opportunity presents itself. They expect to reach their destination within the next ten days.

"I can't see how any family lives without Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy," says J. R. Adams, a well known druggist, of Geneva, Al., in a letter inquiring the price of a dozen bottles, that he might not only have it for use in his own family, but supply it to his neighbors. The reason some people get along without it, is because they do not know its value, and what a vast amount of suffering it will save. Wherever it becomes known and used, it is recognized as a necessity, for it is the only remedy that can always be depended upon for bowel complaints, both for children and adults. For sale by C. D. Stevens, Pharmacist, corner Main and Milwaukee streets.

BLEEDING PILES.

And all other forms of this common and often dangerous disease readily cured without pain or inconvenience.

Thousands of men and women are afflicted with some sort of piles without either knowing the exact nature of the trouble, or knowing it, are careless enough to let it run without taking the simple means offered for a radical cure.

The failure of salves and ointments to permanently cure piles has led many to believe the only cure to be a surgical operation.

Surgical operations are dangerous to life, and moreover not often entirely successful and at this time are no longer used by the best physicians or recommended by them.

The safest and surest way to cure any case of piles, whether blind, bleeding or protruding, is to use the Pyramid Pile Cure, composed of healing vegetable oils, and absolutely free from mineral poisons and opiates. The following letter from a Pittsburg gentleman, a severe sufferer from bleeding piles, gives some idea of the prompt, effectual character of this pile cure. He writes:

"I take pleasure writing these few lines to let you know that I did not sleep for three months except for a short time each night because of a bad case of bleeding piles. I was down in bed and the doctors did me no good. A good brother told me of the Pyramid Pile Cure and I bought from my druggist three fifty cent boxes. They cured me and I will soon be able to go to work again."

The Pyramid Pile Cure is not only the safest and surest remedy for piles, but is the best known and most popular. Every physician and druggist in the country knows it and what it will do.

Send for little book on cause and cure of piles, describing all forms of piles and the proper treatment.

The Pyramid can be found at all drug stores at 50 cents per package.

WHEELMAN GOT BURGLARS

Walworth County Merchant Runs Down A Pair of Desperadoes.

A gang of four burglars blew open the safe in H. J. Shaver & Son's store at Spring Prairie, Walworth county, about 4 o'clock, yesterday morning. Awakened by the explosion, W. H. Shaver, the junior partner, pursued the men on his wheel. He secured help on the way and about a mile away ran onto the burglars. They separated on seeing Shaver, two going east and two south through a field. The two going east were rounded up into a yard of J. M. Christin, where they surrendered to Shaver and W. H. Aldrich. Deputy Sheriff Fowelson took them to Elkhorn on the 11 o'clock train. The other two have not been captured. When seen, two knives were found on the prisoners, which William Kingston of Honey Creek positively says were stolen from him on Thursday of last week. Just before they were captured the men threw away some merchandise which Shaver says were stolen from his store.

FIELD'S STRONG WORDS
"As I look back over more than a third of a century that I have sat on this bench of the supreme court of the United States, I am more and more and more impressed with the immeasurable importance of this court. Now and then we hear it spoken of as an aristocratic feature of a republican government, but it is the most democratic of all. It carries neither the purse nor the sword, but it possesses the power of declaring the law and in that is found the safeguard which keeps the whole mighty fabric of the government from rushing to destruction. This negative power, the power of resistance, is the only safety of a popular government." Justice Field, upon his retirement from the Supreme Court.

NO REASON FOR REGRET.
The railroad employees of the country are not regretting their labors and votes of last year in favor of McKinley, sound money and protection. The gross earnings of the year just ended for the railroads of the country are $75,000,000 greater than in the year preceding, and the number of people employed has largely increased, with a higher scale of wages in many cases. Railroad shops have started up all over the country on full and overtime, giving employment to thousands of old hands who had been thrown out of employment by the previous depression; and the difference generally between conditions in railroad circles now and a year ago shows a remarkable change.

GOT NO BEER MONEY.
The American people must be proud of the record the defeated candidate of the popocratic party of last year is achieving in making of himself a drawing card for county fairs through the country. M. Bryan "lectured" at the Wichita, Kansas, county fair the other day, under an agreement to receive one-half of the gate receipts. This was paid him, amounting to $2,400, but he entered a protest, having discovered that he had been swindled by the management, which had made extra charge for grand stand tickets and for selling beer, the proceeds of which were not divided with Mr. Bryan.

The treasury department is responsible for the statement that there is now in the world $4,225,900,000 in silver money and that of that amount 85 per cent is full legal tender. This looks as though silver had not been discriminated against to any great extent.

Conservative estimates state $160,000,000 as the figure which will probably be reached by the gold reserve of the treasury department before the end of the crop season. This state of affairs presents something of a contrast to the last administration.

Mr. Bryan was heard to say some months ago that he would be glad if the McKinley administration could bring prosperity to the country. That was very patriotic, but has anybody heard his expressions of satisfaction since it has come?

The increase in the postal receipts of the country for this September over those of September of last year simply augments the evidence piling up on all hands to show a condition of increased business.

It is not noticed that Mr. Bryan telegraphed anybody, following the Indianapolis election, as to his belief in a great change in the direction of free silver. Is Mr. Bryan getting disheartened?

Under President Cleveland the per capita circulation in the country fell to $21.10, but it has increased under President McKinley to $22.89.

There will, it is announced, be six celestial eclipses in 1898. But there will be other eclipses, too.

Their Usual Shape.
Juggins—Say, the boys gave me a little birthday spread last night, and I'd like to have you make mention of it in the paper. We only had beer and pretzels, but you can make it appear like it was a No. 1 blowout, can't you?
Reporter—Certainly. I'll state that there was no end to the good things you had to eat.—N. Y. World.

They Differ.
"Don't you believe all you see in the funny papers about summer girls and their engagements just for fun," said the sad-eyed man. "Why not?" "I thought I had met that kind of girl last summer; but she married me good and tight before the year was out."—Philadelphia North American.

The Practical Joker.

WORKED LIKE A CHARM.

Dr. Swing—So you read my book entitled "How to Cure Sleeplessness." What do you think of it?
Miss Flighe—Oh, it worked like a charm. I went to sleep before I had read five pages.—Harlem Life.

Forewarned.
They said: "She's fabulously rich!" To win her I was able. Rumor spoke true, for soon I knew Her wealth was all a fable. —Puck.

Getting Even.
Sympathetic Citizen—You are not going to arrest that boy for stealing a few apples, are you? Remember you were a boy yourself once.

Storekeeper—Yes, I remember it, and that's just why I'm going to arrest him. They pulled me in a dozen times when I was a kid.—Roxbury Gazette.

Its Falsity Proved.
Smythe—I wonder what idiot originated the phrase: "There's no accounting for taste."

Tompkins—Why?
Smythe—Because I'd like to get at him! I've just been accounting to the milliner and modiste for my wife's taste!—Brooklyn Life.

Before and After.
"There are many more women living than I used to think."
"Is that so?"
"Yes. Before I married I used to think my wife was the only woman in the world."—Tit-Bits.

Strictly Confidential.
"Wigginton had to shut down on his wife belonging to that secret society."
"Why?"
"She always woke him when she came home and told him all she had heard."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

His Unkind Assumption.
Marie—What did your father say when Lord De Liverus asked him for your hand?

Miss Specie—I believe papa referred him to a charitable association of which he is a member.—Brooklyn Life.

Physician's Ways.
"Dr. Pellets was very sick last night."
"Did he prescribe for himself?"
"Yes; but he had to call in another doctor to make him take the medicine."

Another Record for Patchen.
Joliet, Ill., Oct. 21.—Joe Patchen, the great son of Patchen Wilkes, broke the world's record pacing to a wagon Wednesday at Ingalls park track. The speedy black horse covered the mile in 2:04 3/4, which is 3 3/4 seconds under the best previous mark. All things being considered, it was a great performance. The weather was not conducive to a record breaking mile. It was too cool for very fast work, and there was a strong wind blowing up the back stretch. The track was in excellent shape.

Iowa Odd Fellows Elect Officers.
Davenport, Iowa, Oct. 21.—Iowa grand lodge of Odd Fellows Wednesday elected officers as follows: Grand master, J. C. Koonz, Burlington; deputy master, H. E. Hibben, Marshalltown; grand warden, J. J. McIntier, Osceola; grand secretary, William Musson, Des Moines; grand treasurer, A. J. Morrison, Marengo; grand representative, J. W. Bullin, Clinton.

Funeral to Be Saturday.
Chicago, Oct. 21.—Mrs. George M. Pullman reached home from New York during the morning and arrangements were begun for the funeral of the founder of Pullman's Palace Car company. Funeral services will be held at the residence, 1729 Prairie avenue, at 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon. The remains will be interred in Graceland cemetery.

Potato Crop Nearly a Failure.
New York, Oct. 21.—Not since 1892 has the potato crop of the United States proved so nearly a failure, says the American Agriculturist in its final report of the yield of 1897. Compared with the liberal crop of last year there is an apparent falling off of nearly 30 per cent in tonnage, and the quality of the whole is greatly deficient.

M'ADAMS SET FREE WITHOUT HEARING

DISTRICT ATTORNEY ASKS FOR HIS DISCHARGE.

No Evidence Has Developed That Connects Him With the Case and There Is No Excuse For Holding Him—Damage Suits Are Under Consideration.

Fred McAdams was discharged without any testimony being heard this morning. His prompt dismissal was doubtless gratifying but it hardly makes up for four days in jail and McAdams is anxious to find out who pays him for the time he spent behind the bars.

The case was called about 10:30 this morning. Attorney W. G. Wheeler who had investigated the case for District Attorney Jackson was in court with the district attorney and John Winans appeared for McAdams.

Without any preliminaries District Attorney Jackson moved that the case against the prisoner be dismissed there being no ground for action.

The district attorneys explained that while the evidence before him had fully warranted the arrest of McAdams and had made any other course impossible, investigation showed nothing on which to found a prosecution.

Attorney W. G. Wheeler made a similar statement to the court, declaring that he could see no reasonable ground for detaining the defendant.

Attorney Winans expressed himself as fully satisfied with the course of the attorneys for the prosecution. They had abundant reason for issuing a warrant, he said. It was manifest, however, that there was nothing to justify the following up of the case. On behalf of the defendant he made the statement that the attitude of the prosecuting attorneys throughout the case had justified no criticism.

On the district attorney's motion Judge Phelps ordered McAdams discharged. Mr. and Mrs. Hurd and Ezra Goodrich were in town from Milton but were not put on the stand.

The case of W. H. Graves against Alpheus J. Wood and Clark Kidder came up in the municipal court this morning and was adjourned until October 26. The suit involves a sewing machine note.

LADIES SCORED A SUCCESS

Auxiliary to B. R. T. Gave a Very Enjoyable Party.

A marked success was scored by the Ladies' Auxiliary to the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen. The first annual ball took place at the Armory and proved thoroughly enjoyable. The hall was decorated appropriately, being illuminated in part by an engine headlight and colored railroad lanterns. A brake wheel in evergreen had the letters L. A. to B. R. T. above it. The windows were hung with curtains and flowers hid the orchestra platform from view. Smith's orchestra furnished the music. To the ladies of the auxiliary all credit is due for the success of the party, but efficient help was given by the arrangement committee of one—Morris F. Dee. The reception committee consisted of Mrs. J. H. Niland, Mrs. M. M. Norton and Mrs. E. C. Gilmore, while the floor committee was composed of Mrs. J. J. Dulin, chief; Mrs. John McGee, Miss Julia Heffron, Mrs. James Gallagher, Mrs. M. F. Dee and Mrs. James Camis.

SHE PLAYS GOOD GOLF

Miss Elizabeth Schicker Sets a New Mark for the Ladies' Links.

Miss Elizabeth Schicker set a new mark for the ladies' links of the Mississippi Golf club yesterday afternoon. Playing around with Miss Genevieve Rich as scorer she made four rounds in 189. One round was made in 43 and another in 46, both of which were considerably below the best previous mark for a single round; while the aggregate for the four rounds made the performance really a remarkable one. Miss Schicker's score in detail was as follows:

First round.....4 5 6 7 3 6 3 4-43
Second round.....5 6 5 3 6 5 5 6-46
Third round.....6 4 7 6 4 5 6 5-48

BURGLAR WITH MASK SMASHED THE SASH

MRS. ELIAS HAYNER'S PLUCKY ACTION.

Awakened by the Blows of an Axe Crushing In Her Bedroom Window, She Went Out And Drove The Marauder Into A Corn Field.

Burglars with black masks do not have much luck in the town of Rock. One of them visited the home of Mrs. Elias Hayner night before last and tried to gain entrance through the wood shed. He failed to get in after prying the lock about half off and then went around to a side window. It proved to be the window of Mrs. Hayner's bedroom. He worked for awhile and finally became impatient and with two slashing blows of an axe broke in the shutters, sash and all. Burglars of the more advanced type would have called this a bad move for besides awakening Mrs. Hayner it went far toward awakening everybody else in the school district. Mrs. Hayner failed to see the contradictory side of it. She did not stop to enjoy herself over the man's crudeness and lack of experience.

"What do you want?" she asked.

"I want money," said the man gruffly.

Mrs. Hayner threw a shawl over her head and with broom in hand slipped out of a back door and went after him. She saw a man of medium height prying away at the splinters around the window and noticed that he wore a black mask. He turned as she came toward him and wasted no time in making his escape. He was half way through a corn field before Mrs. Hayner reached the spot where he had been at work.

Mrs. Hayner believes that he must have been somebody living in the neighborhood and familiar with her affairs. A school teacher has been boarding with her this summer Wednesday night, however, the young lady was not in the house.

EDGERTON BANK AFFAIRS

Official Statement Made By The Stockholders—No Figures Ready.

Directors of the Bank of Edgerton met last evening and it was announced on the street today that the bank would soon be reorganized and would open its doors. According to all the statements heard in Edgerton depositors will not lose a cent.

Orrin W. Bemis of this city, is in Edgerton today consulting with officers of the bank, and it is understood that he may be appointed cashier.

The Milwaukee Sentinel today prints the following dispatch from Edgerton:

"Many anxious depositors have been in town today trying to learn the causes that lead to the closing of the doors of the Bank of Edgerton yesterday. L. H. Towne was appointed receiver at a late hour last evening and has taken charge of its affairs. No statement of the condition of the bank's finances can be obtained for several days yet.

State Bank Examiner Kidd was here last evening and when asked for reasons for the failure of the bank gave out the following statement:

"It appears that the closing of the Bank of Edgerton, Tuesday, was caused by facts brought to light as the result of an examination made by Bank Examiner E. L. Kidd on Thursday and Friday last. It was found that certificates of deposit have been carried as paid which are still outstanding and that a system of false entries covering a series of years has been made by the cashier to cover up the deficiency. The attention of the cashier had previously been called by the bank examiner to the irregular method of bookkeeping which precluded the possibility of verifying the amount of outstanding certificates of deposit, and instructions were given to make proper entries of all certificates when paid and compare and verify the amount outstanding, which he failed to do.

"Bank Examiner Kidd insisted that this should be done when he examined the books last week, and when the cashier knew that this was to be systematically done, he confessed having falsified the books and records.

"It also appears that a considerable sum which was carried as cash items has been charged off the books entirely and totals charged to correspond.

"The directors have for some time feared that some of the methods above named were being practiced and have passed resolutions requiring a change, and have given instructions to the cashier to that end, but have been ignored by him."

The directors authorize the statement that the trouble is due to personal speculation on the part of the cashier of the other officers and the falsifying of accounts to cover the deficit which has been going on for the past twelve years. The losses thus occasioned are believed to reach at least $50,000, and it is said a confession has been obtained from the cashier that he is alone to blame.

The president and directors have given the bank close attention for some months past, looking into all the matters in detail and it is probable their scrutiny has brought about an unearthing of the defalcation which has been covered up for years.

THE annual convention of the Women's Suffrage Association will be held in Monroe, Wis., on Tuesday and Wednesday, Oct. 27 and 28. All friends of the cause cordially invited. Mrs. Ellen Rose, chairman of execution committee.

DEFENDANT WINS NOTE CASE

Signature Experts Were Called On the Case From Local Banks.

In Judge Bennett's court at Monroe the jury in the "forged note" case, J. F. Sears and J. H. Troegner vs. J. L. Moore, returned a verdict in favor of the defendant. Both sides had experts on handwriting on the stand. Experts for the plaintiff testified that the signatures in question were undoubtedly genuine and that it would almost be impossible for a man who possessed so little skill as a penman as James Moore does to forge his brother's signature, simulated so closely. On the other hand the defense introduced experts who testified equally positively that the signatures in question were undoubtedly spurious and that the signature of J. L. Moore could very easily be simulated by a person whose hand writing was so near like it as that of James E. Moore. The defendant J. L. Moore positively denied his signature to the three notes involved in the case, one for $300 and two for $400 each and his testimony apparently turned the scale.

Rev. Arthur C. Kempton has accepted the call of Janesville Baptists and will arrive in this city and begin his labors December 1. Mr. Kempton has been in Eau Claire nearly four years and has won a very warm place in the hearts of the people. His departure was opposed strongly.

Janesville Baptists feel that they are to be congratulated over securing him.

Mr. Kempton is of Canadian birth and hails from the land of Evangeline. Born and raised in Nova Scotia he graduated from college there, and then took a divinity course in Rochester university, New York.

Eau Claire was his first pastorate, he being twenty-seven years of age. His sermons in this city impressed his hearers with his manliness, sincerity and strength of character. His manner is entirely conversational and his command of language unusual.

THE NEW WOMAN AND HER GRANDAM.

My grandam used to turn her wheel
And spin the glistening tow,
Or knit a sock as she'd sit and rock
The cradle to and fro,
And when that sock was worn or torn—
Oh, then with soft spun yarn it
Was soon made new all through and through,
For my grandam she would darn it.

My grandam's daughter's daughter spins
The wheel with her glistening tow,
The whole day long, for she isn't strong,
So she dars not work, you know,
But when her wheel of polished steel,
With nothing to forewarn it,
Hits a snag kerplunk and gets a "pump,"
Why, she's almost sure to "Darn it!"

MAN VERSUS WOMAN.

Mr. Gordon Watts had reached that time of life when a man becomes a kind of walking sportsman's almanac. There was very little in the way of "record times" and "record distances" that Mr. Watts did not know. His soul was consumed with sport.

To be sure, he spent a certain portion of each day in a solicitor's office, but this was sheer good nature, for it is impossible to imagine any subject that interested him less than law, and it was only in deference to the wishes of his family that he sat on an office stool. His real life began when he donned boxing gloves, sat across his machine or was stroking his club four.

Mr. Watts was at the height of his masculine prejudice. When the man versus woman subject came up for discussion, he had one argument. "Can anybody tell me of one single record which is held by a woman—except, of course, talking?" he would say.

Having put this subtle question, he would replace his pipe in his mouth with the satisfied air of a man who has disposed of a troublesome matter and declines to be bothered with any further argument. While the record for everything was held by "man" Mr. Watts failed to see how there could be a doubt as to which was the superior sex.

Consequently it was a cause of great annoyance to him when one Saturday afternoon a lady sprang into the smoking apartment in which he reclined on his way to Teddington.

"This is smoking," said Mr. Watts severely.

"I'm very sorry," said the girl, who had evidently been running for the train, for she was somewhat out of breath. "It can't be helped. I had no time to pick and choose."

The train was an express from Barnes to Teddington, and any ordinary man would have been rather pleased at a tete-a-tete with a nice looking girl who showed no signs of being prudishly reserved. Not so Mr. Watts. It was an intrusion, an invasion, of his privileges as a man. The proper place for a woman is anywhere you like except in a smoking carriage.

"Do you wish me to put out my pipe?" he inquired in a tone of sarcasm.

"Not at all," she said. "In fact, I think I will smoke a cigarette myself."

She produced a dainty cigarette case, and, having lighted up, became absorbed in the fashion plate of a ladies' paper. Mr. Watts returned to his study of Victor Wild's pedigree with a bitter scowl on his face.

She was really a charming little creature in her white blouse and tan colored belt and gloves. If he had seized his opportunity and tried to strike up an impromptu flirtation it would have been excusable, but he was above that kind of nonsense.

"Here we are at last," she said as the train drew up at Teddington. "I hope I have not annoyed you very much by sitting in the same carriage."

Now, as everybody knows, the exact force of a remark depends entirely on the tone of voice. There was something very provoking in the way she spoke—a kind of light, semimelancholic satire.

"Not at all," he said gruffly. "Delighted to have your company. It is quite the usual thing for ladies to use smoking carriages."

It was rather rude, but he was irritated. No man likes to be laughed at by a woman, especially when he deserves it.

Mr. Watts strode away with gloomy dignity to the boathouse, where his skiff was harbored, and, having overhauled it with the air of an authority, paddled leisurely up stream.

Half an hour later he found himself alongside the girl he had met in the train. He gave her "turnout" a critical look and was forced to admit it was decidedly neat. She honored him with a friendly little nod of recognition, to which he responded by lifting his cap very slightly indeed.

Having taken in all the points of her craft and noticed that she sculled rather prettily, he stretched his back with the idea of passing her.

It was here that a trifling surprise was in store for Mr. Watts. It may be that the look he bestowed on her and her boat was one of fancied superiority and that she resented it, for as he quickened his pace she quickened hers and kept alongside.

"Beautiful weather for the time of the year, isn't it?" she said with that aggravating smile on her lips.

"Lovely," he said shortly and set to work seriously to get some pace on the boat, reflecting that the sooner he got clear of this "confounded girl" the better.

"Would you like to race?" she said cheerily.

"Just as you like," he growled.

It was early in the season and the river was almost deserted. Mr. Watts set his teeth and did his best. After a few minutes he glanced to the right. The lady's boat was no longer on a level. She led by about half a length. Presently she was clear of him.

"Have you had enough?" she called out.

"No!" he roared.

Five minutes later he was by her side. At first he thought he had won her down, but a glance at her face told him he was wrong. She was almost as cool and fresh as when they started.

"I think you will have to consider yourself beaten," she said provokingly. "To keep that up any longer when you are evidently not in condition would be absurd."

"Don't trouble about me," he said angrily. "I know I haven't got your pace, but at least I'll keep going as long."

"Nonsense," she answered. "You couldn't keep it up another half mile. For one thing, you haven't had the right sort of coaching."

This was rather too much for a man who considered himself a judge of form but it was true. He was a very fairly good oarsman, with plenty of strength and pluck, but she had all the finish of a varsity crack, learned probably from a brother.

"Well, we won't argue about it," he said rather sulkily. "You have beaten me, so there's an end of it."

"You dig the water too deep and don't get forward enough," she continued, with the aggravating smile still on her lips. "But I shall land here, Goodby."

She turned her boat toward the shore and Mr. Watts continued his way up stream, an angry and humiliated man.

A train was waiting in the station as he approached, and he ran for it, jumping into the first carriage that caught his eye. It was not until he had shut the door and the train had left the platform that he saw what he had done.

He had got into a compartment reserved for ladies, and in the corner of it sat the girl in the white blouse.

"I beg your pardon," he muttered; "didn't notice it was a ladies' carriage."

"Oh, it doesn't matter," she said, showing a row of white, merciless teeth as she smiled. "I don't require a carriage all to myself."

There was the slightest possible stress on the "I," which made him wince. Evidently she was not going to spare him.

"How far did you get?" she inquired. He named the spot where he had turned back.

"You didn't go far. I hope our little race didn't take it out of you too much."

This was said with an air of innocence, which it was impossible to take offense at openly, but it was none the less irritating.

She continued her crushing process until the train reached Barnes by crowing over him about the race. The "crowing" was done very delicately and sweetly, but it was "crowing" nevertheless. She discussed "form" and "style," told him he depended too much on the strength of his arms and not sufficiently on his weight, and altogether made him feel more like a cockney novice than a racing man.

To do Mr. Watts justice, he submitted to it fairly well.

Three weeks later they met again under rather odd circumstances, and this time Mr. Watts had his chance of scoring.

He had been paddling about on the river for an hour or two when he felt a splash of rain. There was evidently going to be a heavy downpour. It happened that he was at a part where there was not a scrap of shelter on either bank for a mile or two except at one place where a huge elm hung over the water and provided one of nature's umbrellas.

He had scarcely reached it when he heard the swish of oars, and, looking through the leaves, he saw the girl in a white blouse coming down stream at racing speed. A gleam of triumph shot into his eyes. She was making for the same tree, but there was only room for one boat, and he clearly had the right of prior possession.

She slowed down and backed water skillfully until she caught sight of him, safely sheltered under the thick leaves. A look of vexation came into her eyes. "You must make room for me somehow," she said crossly.

"Come along, then," he said, seizing a branch of the tree and easing his boat out into the stream. She paddled into the shelter.

"What are you going to do now?" she asked in a doubtful tone.

"I shall make the best of my way back to Teddington."

"You'll get wet through," she said.

"I must chance that," he said. "I owe you a good turn for the nice way you treated me when we raced the other day."

If Mr. Watts had thought for a week he could not have hit on a better way of humiliating her. She was a thorough little sportswoman and felt the satire keenly. To treat her with courtesy after what had happened made her feel very much smaller than a vulgar revenge would have done.

She told her best friend about it and said: "I was never more taken down in my life. I would much rather have got wet through. But it's always the way when you quarrel with a man—he treats you generously and makes you feel small."

Nevertheless, Mr. Watts modified his views of man's superiority from that hour and has never been known to repeat his celebrated argument about record breaking, especially as he has taken his conqueror into life partnership.—Rambler.

War a Curious Business.

Tryon took his long glass on shore with him and found it useful for reconnoitering the position and proceedings of the enemy. He made the acquaintance of a Russian officer who also rejoined in a long glass (a species of acquaintance which was not at all uncommon during the siege of Sevastopol). It was early morning, as soon as it was light enough, they reconnoitered each other with their long glasses, to see if anything new had been done during the night; then, as soon as they were satisfied they mounted their respective parapets, waved each other a friendly recognition, jumped down and blazed away. War is a curious business.—"The Life of Vice Admiral Sir George Tryon."

Good Printing...

Is like good painting—it demands and obtains a second glance. The second glance leads to thought about and knowledge of the thing portrayed, and then on to the artist or advertiser.

The kind of printing as well as the kind of painting that it pays to do and to have done is that which obtains this "second glance." Plenty of the other kind!

We are PRINTERS. Our work obtains glances of admiration, and thus leads on to the end desired. We don't do the "other kind." Put our job room to the test.

Woman's World.

FUR AND FEATHERS.

Ornate Plumes and Hosi—A Green Velvet Hat.

Fur, which was exceedingly fashionable last year, will be equally so this winter. Fur borders and incrustations and applications of fur will be much seen on winter costumes, and natural—so called—heads and animals will also enjoy great favor.

VELVET HAT.

These artificial natural heads are vicious looking enough, with their sharp teeth, open mouths and staring eyes, but they are accepted as the mode and will serve to fasten bodices and wraps.

Feather trimmings are again coming to the fore, both for gowns and millinery. Many of the new winter hats have borders of very fine, small ostrich tips, and this trimming, although not durable for hard service, is usually very becoming, giving a softer look to the features of the wearer than does the ordinary hard, straight edge of the hat or bonnet.

Ostrich plumes are immensely used and are grouped in all sorts of ways and in the utmost profusion for millinery purposes, to say nothing of the extent to which they enter into evening wraps and neck arrangements.

Feather hosi are short, but are growing more elaborate, being often composed of a mixture of down and ostrich plumes or curled cock feathers and dividing into several smaller tails at the ends, forming a sort of tassel. Black, clear gray, drab and white are the favorite colors, brighter tones being seldom seen except for evening wear.

Fur is made into outer garments of various sorts, one new model being of fur and velvet combined, the fur forming a blouse and collar while the basque and sleeves are of velvet. Of course short pile furs only are suitable for this sort of wrap, the long pile varieties being too clumsy and too suggestive of Robinson Crusoe's goatskin attire.

The illustration given today shows a hat of emerald velvet, elaborately draped and puffed. It is lifted on the left side under an immense bow of emerald velvet, consisting of many loops, which pass through a large paste buckle. The wrap worn with this hat has the fashionable tall, flaring collar, edged with black ostrich plume trimming.

WINDOW CURTAINS.

To Lengthen or Shorten Them According to Your Needs.

In changing furnishings from one house to another or from one room to another curtains will often be found not to fit the new windows and to be too short or too long. If they are too long, the remedy is, of course, simple. When they are of plain or figured goods without a fringe or border on the lower edge, they may be turned up and hemmed at the right length; when they have a bottom decoration, they must be turned down at the top to the necessary depth.

If they are too short, however, more work is required in order to rectify the fault. When they are of heavy stuff, like brocade, lampas, brocatel, velvet, damask, chenille, satin or raw silk, the addition of a band of tapestry at the bottom and up the inside edge will give the necessary length and will have no aspect of being an afterthought or a makeshift. Real tapestry is, of course, very costly, but there are plenty of imitation tapestry fabrics which answer the purpose satisfactorily.

Tapestry is recommended because it goes well with anything and may be obtained in all combinations of color.

The picture shows a costume having a skirt of light beige cloth ornamented with embroidery in beige and gold, which forms a border around the foot and extends upward on either side of the bodice. The back of the bodice is plain and is of green cloth, while in front the green cloth forms a bolero, being laid in two large plaits and trimmed with gold buttons. The bolero is placed over a vest of beige cloth embroidered with gold and beige, and the vest opens over a full chemise of white embroidered tulle. The beige sleeves are embroidered at the wrist and have triple epaulets of green velvet. The collar and corselet are also of green velvet.

Evolution of Sleeves.

It is said that in woman's dress the sleeve has undergone greater changes than any other portion of her clothing. In England, after the Saxon invasion, the sleeve first began to assume definite shape, and through the centuries became long, short, pendulous, puffed, tight, full, capped or cuffed. The tight ones were so tight they had to be buttoned from shoulder to wrist. A certain kind of tight sleeve with open pendent ones hanging from the shoulder was a very ornamental style. These sleeves may be seen on the fine bronze figure of Edward III's daughter on one side of his tomb in Westminster abbey.

It seems as if we are now approaching the evolution of this hanging sleeve again. It has commenced at the shoulder, where deep frills stand out like angels' wings over a tight sleeve. It is probable that in a season or two more the frill will have descended to the wrist and changed somewhat in shape. It is to be hoped that the concessions due to our advancing civilization will be observed in these mutations, so that the comfort and convenience demanded by modern life may not fail to be maintained. Really, the sleeves of this season have run so much to frills and puffs that these lines written in 1753 seem quite appropriate now:

Let your gown be a sack, blue, yellow or green, and frizzle your elbows with ruffles sixteen.

—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Her Pocket.

She was aboard a Broadway car the other day, and it was evident that she had lost something. Soon it was plain what the something was—her handkerchief, for she tugged at her belt and hunted up her sleeves and in her bodice and in her purse and all the other many places in which women are in the habit of stowing away the article. But it was no use. The handkerchief was not to be found. The interested carful, no less than the woman, were just resigning themselves to the loss when a man whose white hair justified him in so doing remarked, "Beg pardon, madam, but have you tried your pocket?" "No," cried the woman, and, diving into the folds of her dress skirt, she fished forth the handkerchief. Of course, all the men in the car smiled in their own superior way, as though it were the most amusing thing in the world. But there was really nothing funny about it. For so long were women deprived of their pocket privileges that it is but natural that they should now and then forget that they have been restored to them.—New York Sun.

The Double Skirt.

The double skirt is not becoming to many women. It shortens in appearance a figure to which every inch is a distinct advantage, and, worn by a taller woman, one gets at first sight the impression of a schoolgirl who has outgrown her petticoats. A skirt that has a second edition which reaches to just below or is on a line with the knees will prove decidedly more becoming if double skirts are to become general.—New York Post.

President Rogers of the Northwestern university of Evanston, Ill., has announced that hereafter all girl students will be kept under guard. They must live in the university boarding hall and be indoors every night by 8 o'clock. They must not leave town unless accompanied by a chaperon named by the faculty. Fraternities may give only one party a year.

Still, if you've got any in your pockets I'd be willin' to take it."—Chicago Tribune.

Beautiful Garments

In that new sample line which will be placed on sale today---beautiful in style, make up and in all the minor points that go to make up Cloaks that are right---a fortunate purchase from the representative of a New York manufacturer, made at Chicago, Wednesday, secures us about three hundred of the season's choicest productions at a liberal cash discount. It is a rare thing that we get sample garments so early in the season, but the mild weather has not made a boom in Cloak business and salesmen find it useless to make a trip, so instead of making the territory usually made, the house instructed this salesman to sell his samples and return to New York to wait for a drop in the thermometer. We own the entire line, fresh from the work-rooms, and as no two are alike, the advantage of an early selection is apparent.

In addition to a most excellent showing of Jackets, there is a large line of Cloth and Plush Capes, which are finding a lively sale in all cloak departments. In the line are also the colors in Jackets which are scarce in the market---tans, browns, blues and greens.

In black coats there are some especially fine Jerseys, lined throughout, both in plain garments and braided. In the main, garments in this line are of a higher class than is usually seen in Janesville, but the prices at which we own them will make them only the prices of less pretentious coats. Come in and take a look at them.
